Welcome to Spotlight...

Welcome to the August edition of Spotlight. Summer seems to have abandoned us as I write this, but hopefully you've all still been enjoying your motorsport activities, as well some other non-motorsport related ones (heaven forbid).

My own motoring exploits have been rather non-existent of late, thanks to work and a host of other distractions. The most significant event has been the death of my Vectra tow car/estate/van/shed, which has developed a number of faults that mean it's not worth repairing. Sad in a way as, despite being a rather boring car, it was surprisingly useful. With the seats down, I managed to get 10 17" wheels and tyres in it, along with a further four without tyres and I think I could have fitted in another four too!

Anyway, its brokenness meant I needed another car and, for some reason I have decided that a Renault Sport Clio 197 is a sensible replacement. How that pans out remains to be seen, but I do love a fast Renault, so here's hoping. It might even find its way into some kind of competition at some point, but we'll see.

On the subject of member's cars, if you have something interesting tucked away, drop me a line and perhaps we could include a few words about it in a future issue. We have some very nice cars in the club, so I think it would be nice if we could share them with our other members.

I have mentioned it later in this issue, but I'd also like to again thank those who attended the Wymondham College Car Show in July. I know many members are not "in to" these types of event, but it was a good chance to raise the profile of the club and we managed to sign-up some new members, so thank you to those that attended and, if you are one of those new members – welcome to SCCoN! If you have any questions about anything, just contact a committee member and we will do our best to help.

There is still lots going on in terms of events in the coming weeks/months and we will, as always, be looking for marshals to support us as much as possible. There are some great things coming up, including the stage rally at Wethersfield in September, so please contact Martin Newson if you can attend. If you're new to the club, it's a great way to meet new people and, on top of that, you get to see some cars in action too!

Until next time.

The Wethersfield Stages Rally is getting closer with just under a month to go we need to expand our marshal team for the day to insure we are running a safe event for everybody

Marshals - No surprises but we still need more Marshals. If you are able to come and Marshal please register online by visiting <http://www.wethersfieldstages.co.uk/MarshalRegistration>

Remember to put SCCoN as the group to work with on the registration forms. It would be great if you could come along to help. There will be meal vouchers, a small gift and a marshals' draw too. If you want to know more, send me an email and I will try to sort it, if you could let me know if you will or have registered it would be helpful too.

I am currently working on a simple 'ABC' guide on how to register with Motorsport UK as a Marshal. I know a lot of you have already registered as Marshals in 2019, but others seem to be concerned about doing so, my guide will help you through the process.

Regards
Martin

Further information is also available on the Marshalling page of the SCCoN website: www.scon.co.uk/html/marshalling/marshal.html

Binary Numbers

Binary notation in mathematics is sometimes used by road rally organisers in their more fiendish navigation clues. In a binary number each column is double the value of the column to its right.

So, a binary 1 = number 1, binary 10 = number 2, 11 = 3, 100 = 4, 101 = 5 etc.

Hence binary numbers use the symbols '1' and '0' and no others.

Computers use binary logic whereby '0' is represented by a zero value and '1' by a positive value. The brilliance of this system is that, within computer hardware, a '0' can actually have a minuscule value and the computer will still read it as zero, while a '1' value doesn't have to be accurate as long as it's significantly different from zero. This gives computers protection against electro-magnetic interference and, if some of the tiny individual charges stored in a computer change slightly over time, they still read correctly as positive values representing the '1's in binary notation.

It has recently been announced that the new £50 note will feature an image of Alan Turing, the World War Two code-breaker based at Bletchley Park, who was an early pioneer of computer science. The new banknote also shows the binary number 1010111111110010110011000. This can be easily converted into a decimal number using Microsoft Excel and the result is 23061912. Alan Turing's birth date is 23rd June 1912 so that long binary number is a subtle tribute to him.

Going off backwards - but it's not car rallying

Paddy and Mick were out watching the Circuit of Ireland Rally and they chatted while they waited for the cars to come past. "Paddy," says Mick "does ye have any other hobbies as well as rallying?" "Oh, to be sure, that I do" says Paddy, "I sometimes do some of that scuba diving down at Bantry Bay." "Ah Paddy" says Mick, "I've seen that on the TV". Then, after a pause: "I've always wondered, why it is that you scuba diving people always fall into the water backwards?". "Don't be so stupid Mick, if we fell forwards, we'd still be in the feckin' boat!"

Who or what was a Carman?

While researching my family history, I discovered that my great grandfather Frederick Hawkes was recorded in the UK census of 1881 as a 'Carman' living in Lewisham. But cars hadn't been invented yet, so what was a Carman? It meant a person who conveyed goods in a cart, usually horse-drawn, but the term also described carriers with hand-hauled carts. My 95-year old Mum used to visit her Grandad when he was in his late seventies and remembers that Frederick still had his horse and van (a cart with a box body), that he kept in a passageway between two shops. As a car enthusiast, who spent most of my working life in the motor industry, I like to think that I'm a 'car man' too.

Run-flat tyres

Most new BMW's are now supplied with run-flat tyres. In the 1970's while working for British Leyland at Longbridge I helped to develop the Dunlop Denovo, one of the earliest run-flat tyres. Denovos had little pots of lubricant secured around the well of the wheel. When a puncture occurred, the tyre would squash and burst these pots. The lubricant then reduced the heat build-up that occurred due to friction and flexing of the tyre side-walls. We had to get special permission from the Ministry of Transport to drive cars with deflated experimental tyres on public roads and they supplied documents that we carried in the test cars. I drove many miles in the wedge-shaped Austin Princess models, mostly on motorways, to establish the safe life of a punctured Denovo. Working with Dunlop, our recommendation was that a flat Denovo should be driven for no more than 50 miles at speeds not exceeding 50 mph. Incidentally, that's the same as BMW's current recommendation for a fully laden car with a punctured run-flat. I had a concern that the Princess rode, steered and handled so well with a punctured Denovo that many drivers wouldn't even realise they had a flat. If you drove gently, the only evidence was a little more under-steer (with a front puncture) and the steering wheel being slightly offset from straight ahead. From 1977, Denovos were offered as an option on new Princesses and were standard fitment on Mini 1275GTs. But they were very expensive and, when the factory-fitted set wore out, many owners replaced their Denovos with five normal wheels and tyres. Incidentally, a Mini 1275GT with Denovos (but no spare wheel), was very hard to get through an MOT test because there wasn't enough weight on the rear axle to get sufficient tyre adhesion for the handbrake to pass! BL used to submit three-year-old development cars for their MOT tests with extra weight in the boot. In 1980, after only four years, BL stopped offering Denovos. The Dunlop Denovo - another British invention ahead of its time? What do you think?

SCCoN Club Clothing

Ali Hodder has very kindly arranged for a new line of club clothing to be produced.

With our nice new club leaflets and recent efforts to increase SCCoN's promotional activities, these are a great addition and perfect for making yourself stand out to other members at events!

These are being produced by EZY-TEES, based in Martham, near Great Yarmouth. They are able to provide a full range of clothing items, including:

Event Report: Wymondham College Car Show

A new event for 2019, the Wymondham College Car Show was organised by the Exotic Cars of East Anglia group. It was their first attempt at a relatively large show and, in order to help them grow the event, and to try and get SCCoN out to a new audience, the club had a stand.

Located on the cricket field of the college, there was plenty of space and, when I arrived at around 8am (following a rather noisy journey in the Escort!), there were already plenty of cars around. By 9am, most had arrived, ready for the official opening at 10am.

There was a really broad mix of cars and bikes on display, from classic hot rods, through hot hatches and classic cars, right up to some beautiful Italian exotica. Particular favourites for me were an early Dodge Viper and five(!) DeLoreans. SCCoN was flanked by the local Abarth club and I do have a strange attraction to the modern 500/595 Abarth (sorry), so they were nice to see too.

The SCCoN stand also had a real mixture of cars, demonstrating the wide variety of opportunities there are in club motorsport; with Autotest and AutoSOLO cars, targa cars, road rally cars, trials cars and stage rally cars. Henry Hardiment's Mini Cooper S and Oli Denington-Price's Hillman Imp seemed to be the stars of the show, getting a lot of attention from visitors to the stand.

I must say, for a first try, the organisers did a fantastic job. They were all young guys and, to get hundreds of cars to show up, arrange catering and live music was a great achievement. From a SCCoN perspective, I think it was a great day, with the club getting a lot of interest. Lots of leaflets were given out, lots of conversations were had and we even sold two family club memberships on the day, which demonstrates how positive an impact it can have to attend local events.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all of the members that came along, and especially Paul Doodson and Howard Joynt for sorting out the club trailer, and Christine and Martin Newson for bringing along some lovely cakes.

The day wouldn't have been a success without the club members who took the time to share their passion with other show-goers. I know it wasn't the type of event many of you are used to attending, so thanks to all of you for coming, I hope you enjoyed it.

Hopefully see you all again next year!
